

...ft are Auxiliary Bishop John E. McCafferty, Bishop Howard Hubbard
...rchbishop Jean Jadot, the Apostolic Delegate, and Auxiliary Bishop

Maria Sanchez reads a lesson in Spanish.

Television cameras follow the line of prelates from the installation.

BRATION!

...hange Street porch of the ...r Memorial, under the
...ection of anxious at-
...tants. One of the latter
...holding his kalimafchi, a
...brimless, flat-black hat.
...de the inverted hat, resting
...a pleated turquoise satin
...ng, was the gorgeous gold,
...weled pectoral cross that
...her Kissal had worn
...ing the Mass.

...p and down the steps
...ple floated, in and out of
...reception, toward the
...r Corners, toward the
...ge across the specially
...ined and temporarily
...ired street. Father Joseph
...o, long gone from the city,
...up from Nunda, looking
...nd declaring himself quite
...py with country life,
...ugh not with everything in
...rural scene. Father
...hael Conboy came along,
...he was delighted with
...eca Falls and his first
...orate. He used to be
...op Hogan's secretary.

Flotillas of buses drew up in the street — city buses and over-the-road vehicles that had brought in many of the 10,000.

Some people who didn't have to worry about hurrying home assembled meanwhile in the back room of a neighborhood restaurant. They were 17 relatives of Bishop Clark, presided over by Aunt Margaret Bills. Thirty-seven of them from Waterford and Troy had hired a bus to make the trip together.

Back down at the reception, the 18,000 cookies baked in kitchens all over the diocese were holding up under a continuous onslaught. The crowd milling around the bishop was not noticeably diminished.

Outside, a middle-aged man named Bill Bracey remarked that he had not seen so many clergymen in all his life. He said that he was an Episcopalian, but that he often went to Mass because he liked it. He said that it had taken him 45 minutes to reach Bishop Clark, that he told the bishop so, and wished him a successful, long reign.

"Then the bishop said," Bracey reported, "he hoped his reign would last longer than my 45 minutes in line."

Clark greets Rev. Margrethe B.J. Brown, executive r of the Genesee Valley Presbytery.

Bishop Clark greets well-wishers at the reception following his installation.