

Msgr. E. McAniff Dies at Age 61

Msgr. Edward J. McAniff, who was secretary to the late Bishop James E. Kearney for eight years and pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church for five, died July 26, 1979, in Genesee Hospital, three days before his 61st birthday. In ill health for many years, he had retired in 1968 and had been living on the Pittsford-Victor road.

The Mass of Christ the High Priest was concelebrated Sunday night at Old St. Mary's, where Msgr. McAniff's brother, Msgr. James McAniff, is pastor. A pontifical concelebrated

Mass of Christian Burial was offered Monday morning, also at St. Mary's.

Principal celebrants of the two Masses were, respectively, Bishop Joseph L. Hogan and Bishop Matthew H. Clark. The homilists were Fathers Charles Bennett and Bruce Ammering.

Msgr. McAniff was born July 29, 1918. He attended St. Augustine's School, St. Andrew's and St. Bernard's seminaries. Bishop Kearney ordained him Dec. 18, 1943, in Sacred Heart Cathedral and assigned him to the cathedral staff, where, in addition to parish duties, he had the particular responsibility of assisting in the arrangements for diocesan-wide celebrations. His annual adult instruction courses became well known. He became Bishop Kearney's secretary in June, 1955, and continued in the post until June, 1963, when he was appointed pastor of Blessed Sacrament.

Pope John XXIII made him a Papal Chamberlain on July 31, 1959. He retired from the Blessed Sacrament pastorate in June, 1968.

Surviving besides his brother are a sister and brother-in-law, Julia and Francis Dollard.

Area Man Active In 'Homecoming'

Alpharetta, Ga. — George Clements, a native of Penn Yan, N.Y., will speak at the First Annual Lay Celebration on Evangelization in Washington, D.C., Aug. 16-18.

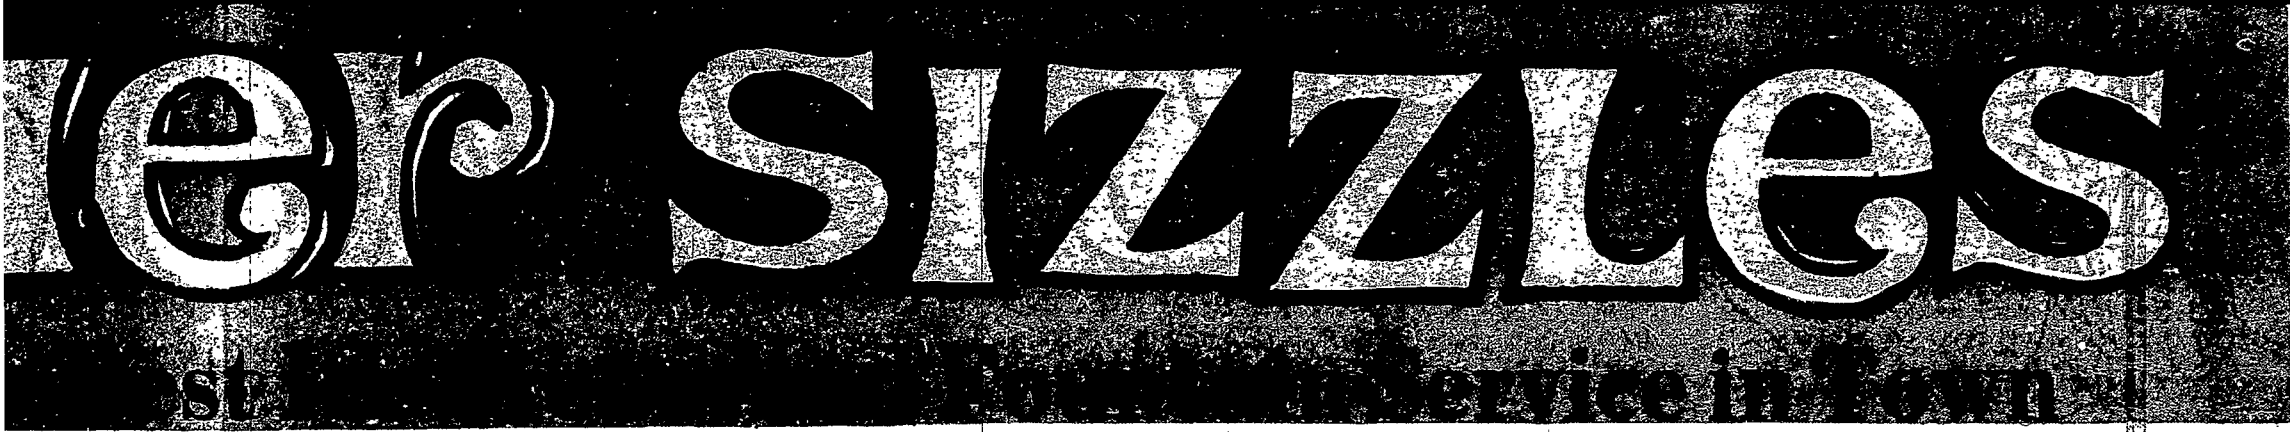

Clements recently served as a lay coordinator for a Homecoming program at St. Thomas Aquinas Church here, which involved nearly 40 percent of the parishioners and reached more than 400 alienated Catholics. Clements is a member of this parish.

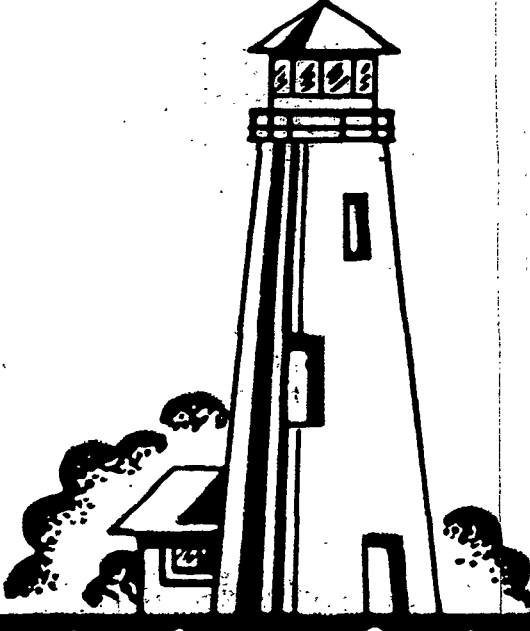

He is the son of Daniel J. Clements, a well-known civic leader and a trustee of St. Michael's Church in Penn Yan.

Charismatics

Two leaders in charismatic renewal will be at the Shrine of the North American Martyrs, Auriesville, on Sunday, Aug. 5. Father John P. Bertolucci and Father Edward McDonough, CSSR, will celebrate Mass at 2 p.m., after an hour of choral music in the Coliseum. Places will be reserved around the circular sanctuary for the aged and infirm.
