Students Experience Opera, History,

Nazareth Academy's Italian I and II classes recently spent a special night out as guests of the Opera Theatre of Rochester. Students and their teacher, Sister Cora Marie Mitrano, attended a rehearsal of Giuseppe Verdi's "Un Ballo In Maschera" (A Masked Ball), at the Eastman Theater.

By hearing this opera performed in Italian rather than in English, the girls were able to test what they have learned in Italian classes.

was a celebration of Founder's day at Nazareth Academy. Founder's Day is the day the Sisters of St. Joseph celebrate their beginnings as a community of women religious. These beginnings occurred in France, in 1650, when Father Medaille helped a small number of women who were interested in community, prayer, and service of their neighbors, to come together to begin this mission within the church. Prior to this women had not been allowed to exist as an active apostolic group, but were required to carry on their activities within a cloistered lifestyle.

The day's events included a slide-lecture presentation by Sister Maria Kellner who traced the history of the order from those first days in Le Puy, France to their involvements in the Church today. Sisters from the Nazareth faculty and from other works addressed the students, discussing the gifts and the problems of life in a religious community. There were also displays, pictures and articles in the library and school halls.

Should the draft be reinstated?

AQUINAS

DAVE SALAH
Sophomore

"No, because our artillery forces are beefed up. In past wars we've had to fight ground forces and artillery but now it's a matter of pushing a button. A volunteer army is enough protection for the country and even if another war happens it will be a push button one. The draft wasn't fair. We're supposed to be a democracy but how can it be one if people are forced to quit jobs and school and go and do what they don't want."

PAUL TUREK
JV football

"No. If they are so concerned about another war breaking out where they need more people in the armed forces, they should work harder to stop the war, through peace talks, before it gets started. I feel the voluntary army is sufficient for defense, but if they have the draft again there will be loopholes — if people are so against the draft they will find ways out of it. I don't think it will be reinstated."

JOE LAVILLA
Junior
forensics

"No. At this point in time a volunteer army is all that is needed. And it should be kept volunteer because in case of war the young people will join out of patriotism. The draft wasn't fair, it disrupted people's lives by them having to quit jobs and school. I think that right now the army's up to good strength with the volunteers."

EDWARD BOLAND
Sophomore

"No. Joining the army should be a free choice. We serve the government enough through taxes and support. The army is in fine condition with volunteers and besides, in another war the ground forces won't do any good."

DAVE RIEDMAN
Sophomore
JV soccer

"No, because if someone is in college and they have to go away it's disruptive. How can a country be a democracy if the people are forced to go to war. If you're a volunteer you're more apt to be more loyal to your country than if you are forced to do it. I think a voluntary army is sufficient to the defense of this country. I think the Vietnam War turned things around as far as having a draft, and if they reinstate it they will have problems."

KEVIN CALLARAME
cross country

"No. I don't think people should have to fight wars unless it is by their free will. No, the volunteer army isn't as strong with the volunteers — but a solution would be to offer a person considering a military career more money."

BILL CIGNARALE
varsity football

"It shouldn't be reinstated. It should be a person's freedom to choose whether to go fight or not. The draft takes away a person's freedom and we are in a day and age when Americans will stand up for their rights. A volunteer army is sufficient during war, people are basically patriotic so we'd get a large enough army. If you draft someone who doesn't want to go, he's not going to fight to the best of his ability, so, it's better to have those who want to go. If the draft is reinstated there will be protest. Besides, the size of the army (manpower) doesn't matter anymore because of the technology in weapons."

JOSEPH CAUFIELD

"I don't think it should be reinstated but it will be if we go to war again, but the government should strive through peace talks to keep us out of war. I don't go along with the draft idea, but it will be reinstated. I don't think a volunteer army has enough strength at the moment there's enough men but not if we go to war. It's not all pushbutton warfare so the draft is a necessary evil."

BK Kings Meet Strong Aerial Attack

By Terrance Brennan

"They just overpowered us," Bishop Kearney middle linebacker John Consul said after the unbeaten Eastridge Lancers trounced his Kings in a non-league neighborhood battle at Eastridge, 34-0.

The victory boosted Eastridge's record to 5-0-1 and kept the Lancers in the chase for a Class AAA sectional playoff berth. Greece Athena and East High, both 6-0, the only other unbeaten teams in Monroe County, remain first and second, respectively. Eastridge, third in the race, is favored to win its last two division games with Brighton and Irondequoit and advance to the East-West title game.

Lancer receiver John Crumb had his best day ever, with seven receptions for 132 yards and two touchdowns. Quarterback Mark Annunziata turned in a solid 11-for-21 day, good for 158 yards and three touchdowns.

For the Kings, it must have looked like the end of the road. Rarely does a team get a chance to play giant-killer twice in one season. A few weeks ago, Kearney humbled powerful Aquinas, 12-9. They went into this game hoping for the same.

But it wasn't to be. Kearney (2-4) gained only four yards in the first half while the Lancers piled up a 20-0 lead.

The Kings managed only 30 more in the second half. Kearney quarterback Tim Thomas was sacked six times—four by Lancer's linebacker Sam Campanelli—for 62 yards and was harassed so much that he completed only one of eight passes he managed to get off. The total passing yardage for Kearney: minus 54 yards.

It was the second shutout of the season for the Lancers' defense, which has allowed only 20 points in six games and only three from the second quarter on.

The outcome was decided the first two times Eastridge had the ball. The Lancers drove 61 yards in eight plays and scored on a 21-yard pass from Annunziata to Crumb for a 6-0 lead. They came right back and traveled 62 yards in 11 plays with Ron Plummer running it in from the three.

"It happens every game we get scored on first," Consul said. "I think too many of us quit at halftime."

"They throw the ball like a college team," Kearney coach Don Della Vella said later. "I can't ever remember a high school team around here with an aerial attack like that."
