Mother Seton Named To Hall of Fame

Seneca Falls — Mother Elizabeth Seton, founder of the Sisters of Charity and the first canonized American saint, was inducted into the Women's Hall of Fame, here on Oct. 28.

Sister Alberta Beckwith of the Seton Shrine in Emmitsburg, Md., accepted a plaque commemorating the event. Mother Seton was one of four inductees. The others were Alice Paul, Juliette Gordon Low and Dorothea Dix.

Rebecca Holden, Hall of Fame president, said "As the founder of the Sisters of Charity, the first (American) religious congregation of women, Mother Seton made history in her own time by also founding the first parochial school, and by beginning orphanages, day nurseries, and hospitals. The results can be seen in the lives of thousands of American women today and in those of the people they serve."

The third annual award ceremonies took place at Eisenhower College.

All in the Family

By Sarah Child
Ah, to have someone else go out and buy my clothes. On my last birthday that's what happened.
The head of the house and our older daughter who considers herself something of a fashion arbiter, sauntered out on my behalf.

It is not the changing in a claustrophobia-producing cubicle that is so depressing nor even the initial glimpse in the three-way mirror of the "body unbeautiful".
"And not a thing that's dowdy or matronly," said daughter happily in subtle reference to the Eleanor Roosevelt dresses I usually come home with.
Everything fit nicely and I began to scheme how I could get the two of them to do all my shopping. (Husbands always spend more on you than you would yourself.)

If you are lucky, the neckline stops somewhere short of the navel, but the waistband is at the knees and the hemline which the same clerk has described as "street length" hovers between ankle and the top of your shoes.
Later I had second thoughts. It occurred to me when the fashion arbiter walked out the door wearing my new outfit, looking, of course, better than I do in it, that there's something to be said for the Eleanor Roosevelt dresses after all.
