 terests or ideologies, as long as support is given to the claim that the advance of justice comes, in the final analysis, through violent struggle — as long as these things happen; then niceties, restraint and selectivity will periodically give way in the face of the simple and brutal logic of violence, a logic which can go as far as the suicidal exaltation of violence for its own sake."

The pontiff said that the truth required that violence be recognized for what it is and not rationalized for political or ideological reasons. "Murder must be called by its proper name: Murder is murder; political or ideological motives do not change its nature, but are on

Eucharist

Focus on Eucharist devotions will be held at St. Boniface Church on Thursday, Jan. 3. The rites open with Evening Prayer at 7:30 p.m., followed by Mass at 8:15 and exposition of the Blessed Sacrament.

the contrary degraded by it," he said.

"The massacre of men and women, whatever their race, age or position, must be called by its proper name: and with the appropriate qualifications, so must all forms of oppression and exploitations of man by man, of man by the state, of one people by another people."

Finally the pontiff called on those in power to be responsible enough to press for necessary reform before oppression explodes into violence. "Statesmen and international institutions," he said, "have a responsibility to build a new and more just moral order, based on truth about man and established upon a just distribution not only of wealth but also of power and responsibility," he said.

He said that "suffering individuals or peoples should be given confirmation of their dignity and inalienable rights" so that they will "exercise upon the forces of oppression effective pressure for transformation, pressure more effective than acts of violence; which generally lack any future prospect — except one of greater suffering."

$148,000 Raised for Seminary

The 1979 Seminary Collection taken up in all the parishes of the diocese raised nearly $148,000, according to Father Frank E. Lioi, St. Bernard's Seminary rector, and Father Thomas R. Statt, Becket Hall rector.

The sum represents a 50 per cent increase over the previous year's collection.

Both rectors expressed appreciation and reiterated their belief that the annual collection is an important way of keeping diocesans informed about the work of the seminaries.

Columnists

The Courier-Journal columnists are enjoying a holiday. Their columns will resume in next week's edition.

German Mass Set for Jan. 6

Two German-born priests of the Rochester diocese will celebrate the annual German language Mass for the Catholic Kolping Society. Father Winfried Kellner will be the principal celebrant, and Father Frederick Eisemann, the homilist. The Mass is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 6, at St. Boniface Church, Gregory Street.
