and Mack Spelley, Religion Department chairman, were pleased with the turnout from DeSales.

"I'm proud of the turnout from DeSales," Spelley said, "and I think it will greatly strengthen the convictions which the students already possess. I think the march will make them proud to be on the side of the angels."

What have you discovered through your studies that has surprised you?

BISHOP KEARNEY

JOAN HASBY
Senior
president, equestrian club

"I guess what we've been reading in psychology about deja vu and one of the scientific explanations for it. The brain is in two sections and one section receives a message first. When it is transmitted, within seconds, to the other, the person gets the impression that it has happened before. I always thought deja vu was a psychic ability."

TIM FINNEGAN
Freshman
soccer

"What we've learned about the Iranians and how they will do anything for their religion. I was surprised to learn about their dedication to their religion and that according to their beliefs crimes are physically punished — like stealing, the hand can be cut off."

LORIN ARMANINI
soccer

"We've learned in our Afro-Asian classes that there are cultures that are still primitive as compared with ours, and we really don't know that there are cultures that are backwards. I've also learned that culture is important to people."

CAROL RICHARDS
Sophomore

"In biology we learned about the old ideas about where life came from, like the early 18th century theory that putting old shirts and wheat together produced animals. I was amazed that people actually believed that."

MIKE PERROTTA
Junior
student government chairperson

"What surprised me in American History was how corrupt our judicial system can be. Also about the different views held by judges and the plea bargaining system. I didn't think those things went on. Before, I thought it was a matter of committing a crime and being tried."

RICHARD PREM
Junior
co-captain football team

"What was most surprising, I think, was learning about our system of government here in America and the conflict in democracy. We're supposed to be a free country but there are a lot of restrictions because of the federal government. I was surprised to find out just how much the government is involved in everything."

KATRINA BAILEY
Freshman

"I was surprised to discover how many times Korea (before split) was invaded and how Japan and Manchuria used it as a pathway to get to other countries; that Japan controlled the country and how harsh the Korean government was through its laws."

MIKE VERRIOLI
Senior
golf team

"For an English assignment we read 'Dress Grey' which is about the scandal at West Point. One incident involved a murder that people tried to cover up. You just don't think things like that could happen at West Point. It makes me wonder about other institutions."
