

Speak with a new voice

Media surround us. They influence us and the way we relate to each other more dramatically than ever before. A message can be transmitted instantaneously around the world. Even the print media are taking on bold new shapes because of technology.

In response to this media explosion, the church is determined to stand up and speak with a strong new voice: through special projects of the Catholic press and through radio and television and other media. This effort, called the Catholic Communication Campaign, includes an annual collection.

The suggested date for this year's appeal is June 7, 8.
