

The Way It Was June 4, 1975

It was the day of the 21st issue of RapAround and to put those issues on the press, RapAround covered art festivals, band concerts, banquets, sports events, psychology classes, history seminars, May days, youth masses, career days, play rehearsals, voter registrations and fashion shows.

With McQuaid's 4 1/2 point victory over Aquinas, the Knights won the Section V track and field championship. The rival schools had ended the City-Catholic season that year with tying records of 7-3, 7-3.

Area Catholic high school winners in the St. Bonaventure Press Day were: Bishop Kearney's Sue Choma for column writing, and Sue Kunz who took the New York Times Certificate of Merit for feature writing. Another NY Times Certificate for feature writing went to Sheila Garred, Mercy.

Barbara Hall, St. Agnes, took first place for her poem, "The Damsel," and classmates Andree Hall and Mary Mary Gould took second place and a citation for photography, respectively.

Yearbook publication awards went to Bishop Kearney's "Crown and Sceptre", Cardinal Mooney's "Apogee," and Mercy's "Veritas."

The fight to have the ERA added to the U.S. Constitution was beginning and Equal Time asked the St. Agnes students about their views. There were seven yes votes, and one maybe from Susan Sloan who said, "I'm not quite sure. I believe in some aspects like equal pay and equal opportunity, but other aspects of ERA go too far, such as the possibility of women being eligible for the draft."

Rosiland Brittain commented, "The ERA is beneficial to women and should be added to the Constitution."

DeSales students also took two of the regional awards; Bernie Lynch took the Ontario County Award while Patty Dendis won the Seneca County prize.

Equal Time

Has the current state of the economy affected your future plans?

NOTRE DAME

NANCY BAUER
Junior

"No, not really. I'm planning on going into social work and I hope I'll be able to get a job. It's hard to tell about things right now. It's going to be hard for many people to find work — I hope things will get better."

PATRICK HOYT
Junior
track

"Yes, it has. Before, I was thinking of a teaching job of some sort, or writing. But now there is supposed to be a surplus of teachers so I probably wouldn't be able to get a job if I went into that. I'm looking into the field of electronics and computer programming now; there's always something you can do there."

LISA ANTHONY
Junior
French Club

"Yes, because everything is so expensive you're going to need a better job so you can have the best things. I want to be a lawyer. It might still be difficult to find work, but I'm willing to try. I hope everything improves in the future."

CHRIS KOZLOWSKI
Senior
National Honor Society

"The first criterion that I set in choosing a career is that I must interact with people and serve them if possible. The money is not as important as my enjoying what I'm doing and the economy doesn't have that great of an effect on what I'm doing. I'm taking pre-med at Georgetown next year, where I hope I get a good start on achieving that goal."

JOHN CICCONE
Junior
football

"No, it's not affecting my job plans. I'm planning on taking up forestry. I don't think many people are getting into it, and there'll be a lot of jobs to keep replenishing the forests. There'll also be work in conservation."

JIM FELLI
Senior
track

"Definitely. The job situation forces you to think of what job you'll be able to demand that will support you, with the cost of living going up every year. I'm planning on electrical engineering. Engineering is one of the few fields that is always in demand in a technological society."

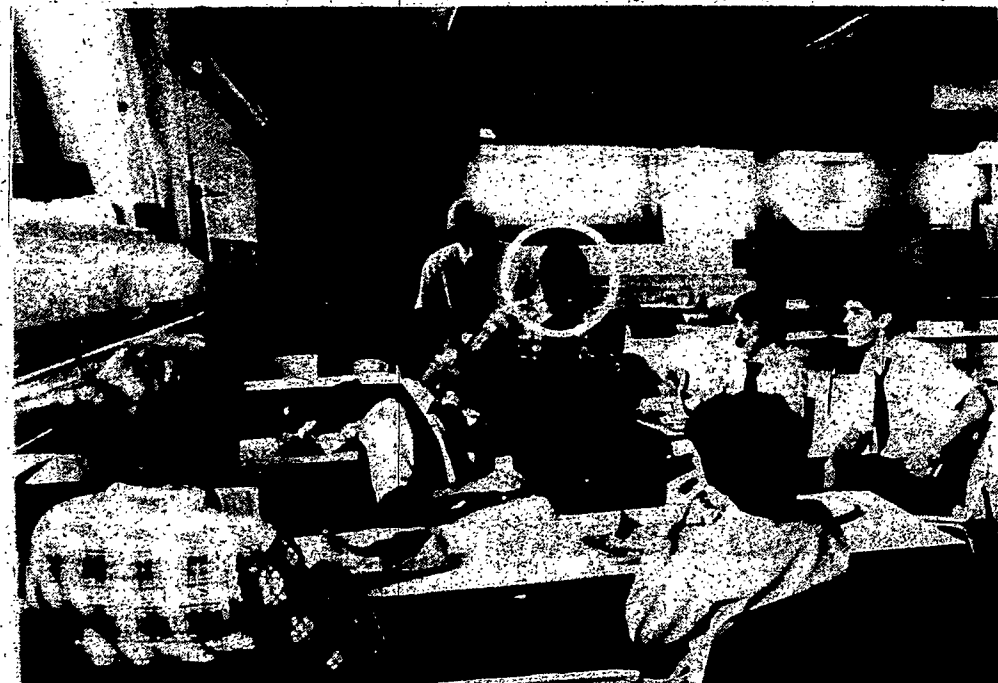

PATRICIA PADGETT
Senior
track

"No, not really, because I'm going into data processing so it's helping me. I was going to go into secretarial work, but decided that processing would be better. I plan on going to Corning Community College and then go to Virginia where it would be easier for me to find a job."

NANCY REIDY
Senior
yearbook staff

"Yes, because there are fewer jobs for accountants and secretaries and they're not hiring as much. I was majoring in secretarial, and now I'm concentrating more on accounting and business administration. I'm going to go to the Elmira Business Institute, and I'm looking now for a part-time job in the field."
