All in the Family

You, Too, Can Nap

On the whole, the head of the house is an easy man to live with.

Doing dishes is not beneath him, nor swabbing out bathrooms (says the Army taught him everything he knows about latrines), and all that is necessary to get him to cook on the weekends is to have the ingredients on hand.

When the kids were babies, he did his share of changing diapers, spooning pureed peas and applesauce into them, and walking the floor with them the nights they were sick.

Now that they are older, he attends ALL their soccer games, helps with homework, manages to dispense more praise than criticism, and has absolutely no qualms about explaining (seven days a week, if necessary) how discipline is one of the highest expressions of love.

Thoughtful and considerate 99% of the time, he's the kind of man mothers hope their daughters will marry, and cognizant of that fact, I thank the Lord on that score several times a day.

No paragon, of course; there are one or maybe even a couple of little things that get to me now and then.

One is that he has the kind of willpower that some other people I can name pray for without an awful lot of results.

To illustrate, a couple of years ago he said he thought he should lose 50 pounds. And without fuss or fanfare, he did. Before he was quite through with that project, he opined that it might be wise to give up smoking, and with no more ado, gave up a habit of 25 years.

Most recently, he commented that it might be fun to try running a marathon sometime. And this past Labor Day he did.

This kind of single-mindedness is, as you can imagine, hard on the rest of

Anniversary Celebration

Tomorrow is a big day for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Littlebetter of 98 VanStallen St. They will celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Littlebetter is 85 and Mr. Littlebetter boasts 91 years and told Sister Mary Catherine Manley that he's "running for 100."

The anniversary couple are proud of the fact that they have lived in Our Lady of Perpetual Help parish for 61 years. They have four children, 11 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

the family. But we are trying hard to follow in his footsteps and follow through on doing what we say we are going to do.

For example, today I said, "I am going to take a nap." And I did. Without procrastination, vacillation, or any halfway measure. Maybe I'm on my way.
