Seniors Chris Volpe and Sandy Manning display Field Day sign that brought Mercy's four classes together in friendly and enthusasiic competition.

Seniors Eillen Gefell, Michele Engels, Lisa Dell, Anne Paul and Beanie Doohar, class president, get into the swing of their last field day.

Spirited Contests Mark Field Day

By Joan M. Smith

If scientists could harness. the energy of Mercy students there would be enough power. to light the world. It was Field Day last Friday at the Blossom Road school and there was no lack of energy, spirit, fun, or color. The day carrying out the class color scheme and the campus flashed with green (freshmen), blue (sophs), red (juniors), and blue and gold (seniors). The freshmen, by the way, were designated as the class that best carried out the color theme.

Following the tradition, a scavenger hunt was part of the festivities and in the Thursday pep rally, the classes were given the items and oddities they had to present the next day. A freshman had to show up dressed as a bowling ball while a soph had to come dressed as Santa Claus. A junior had to arrive as an ape, and a senior had to. appear as a genii. One class had to bring in a bulldozer and another a Rochester Amerk hockey player and Red Wing baseball person dressed in each other's uniform. One girl from each class had to dress as McQuaid varsity football Juniors were runners up while the sophs came in third and the seniors last. The freshmen also won the songfest. Seniors lost that contest by 'twopoints.

The Best Costume Award went to the juniors and they also took first place in Father Panepinto's Pranks. In the big softball championship, it was the seniors over the freshmen, 20-0. At the little championship field the juniors beat the sophomores. Most Valuable Player from each of the teams was: Betsy Barker, freshman: Jennifer Martins, sophomore; Meg Ciaccio, junior, and Liz Mack and Lisa Brown shared the honors for the senior class.

The cheerleading contest was won by the seniors and the Miss Cheerleader Award went' to: Eileen Hetterich, freshman; Mary Heindel, sophomore; Martha Clement, junior; Janet Barringer, senior.

sophomore; Martha Clement, Not quite high school age yet, but nevertheless, enjunior; Janet Barringer, joying the fun on a lovely Fall day was Ryan McGuire.

In the song fest, the freshmen singers, under the direction of Kathy Cobb, stick to their color theme in singing "Greensleeves," "Green, Green," and "The Green Door." They were helped by Barb Murer, who cavorted as a green frog.
