Over At DeSales

According to a news release, through the collective efforts by friends of DeSales High School and Tops Friendly Markets, the school is a great deal closer to buying their much needed new storm windows.

The "Tops Tape Saver" Program was the answer for the school as students were able to save Tops register tapes and redeem them for cash. For every $300 in tapes, Tops donated $1. The school turned in a total of $150,789.59 in tapes which netted $502.63 to use towards the windows.

Bill Perryman, Geneva store manager, presented DeSales with the check, and pointed out that the program is open to all non-profit organizations in the Geneva area.

Students from DeSales High School and parents from the Catholic Community are volunteering their services for a new school venture — operation of the Ave Maria Religious Store. According to Frank Delamere, director of Promotion and Development, the store, which is around the corner from DeSales, was purchased by the school and is being run in affiliation with the school's bookstore. The store, which has a large variety of religious articles, is open from noon until 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

According to Frank Delamere, the DeSales Christmas Gift Sale, sponsored by the Mothers' Club, will swing into action the week of Nov. 1. The sale is like the Avon approach, said Delamere, where people select their items through a catalogue but then the order is placed through the school.
