Equal Time

Do you think the women's movement has been successful?

ST. AGNES

JANICE SCHWIND
Senior
"Sound of Music"

"Only marginally. It has advanced women in some fields but it still has a long way to go. I think deep down there are the same feelings between men and women — that hasn't changed much. With men it's traditional roles between them and women. Their way of thinking hasn't changed that much and probably won't in the near future."

ANN TRUNFIO
Senior
NHS vice president

"Yes, because women are getting better jobs with better pay, and are being treated more equally. The movement has been helpful in female and male relationships because women don't feel inferior anymore, and men respect them more."

KAREN WERDEIN
Senior
National Honor Society

"Not completely. Women haven't accomplished equality but it has increased the awareness of the issue in our country. I think it has been helpful in male/female relationships because women have been recognized as human beings more now than before. I don't think the movement has put stress on male/female relationships."

DEBBIE HAUPT
Junior

"Yes. We're getting more jobs, usually held by men and everybody finally realizes we can do the same work as everybody else. The movement hasn't put a strain on male/female relationships. I think it has given them a chance to strengthen their relationships with each other, now that the man and woman look at each other as individuals."

AMY PAPPOON
Senior
National Honor Society

"It's been helpful and people understand women's problems better, but I don't think we're equal yet. ERA hasn't been passed. The movement has helped male/female relationships because people can be what they want to be and the traditional stereotypes are being broken down. People can be what they want in society."

SUSIE MALOVICS
Junior

"Yes. I think women are moving up in life. We've proven to others that we can make it. I think it has been helpful to female/male relationships. Men understand now that women need their chance to move up in life."

MARTHA CONNOLLY
Senior
Student Senate president

"It has succeeded to the extent that people's opinion of women is changing for the better but there is still some hesitation in business in giving women better positions. I think it has changed women's status but not as much as it should. I don't think it has changed female/male relationships that much. It depends on the male's way of thinking."

MARY BEAUCHAMP
Senior
National Honor Society

"Yes. It's raised the consciousness level of both men and women. There's still a ways to go, however. It's made a lot of difference in the job market. It's been helpful in the male/female relationship because now they have a deeper understanding of each other and their personal goals."

Jobs: Youths Need Them

Next week the second phase dealing with youth services swings into action. On Thursday, May 7, various Rochester youth service organizations, members of the business-industrial complex, and community groups will attend a local conference. They will discuss ideas, plans and solutions regarding the problem of youth unemployment.

This meeting came about through a conference held last fall where the problem was discussed and research plans begun.

According to Tina Dannenfeldt, career specialist for the Center for Youth Services, three basic needs emerged from the research. It was decided that a linkage between youth and information resources had to be developed. A look had to be taken at career education offered within school curricula, and community commitment had to be developed.

Answering these needs will be the focus of next week's conference.

Like the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO), Center for Youth Services, located at 258 Alexander St., offers a variety of programs for youth. Seminars tackle such problems as coping with stress, drugs and the law, family, and living on your own.

The workshops regarding employment, given at the center and in the high schools, advise young adults how to get a job, how to keep it, how to communicate with employers, and how to fill out applications and write resumes.

When talking about the young adults enrolled in her classes, Dannenfeldt said, "Most of them are hard workers and they do have skills." Based on this, she insists that class members think about their skills. According to her they are unaware that motivation, perseverance, and the ability to work by oneself are skills, and are important to employers.

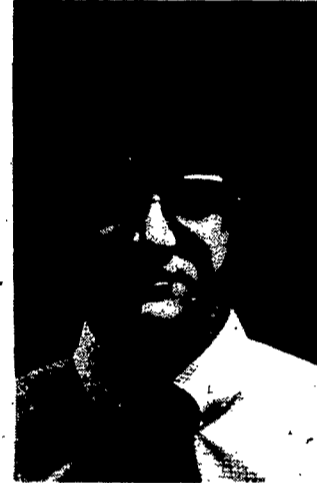

Dannenfeldt stressed the fact that there is a huge unemployment rate especially among minorities and that the problems are severe. The May 7 conference is planning to chip away at those problems.

Mannara Wins Poetry Honors

Kevin J. Mannara, a senior at Aquinas Institute, has been awarded the 1981 Catholic Daughters of America first prize in the organization's poetry contest.

First prize is $100 and the award will be made at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 19 at St. Philip Neri Church Hall, 1772 Clifford Ave. The presentation will be made by Father Paul Cuddy who is the Court Chaplain for Our Lady of the Cenacle No. 1139.

Kevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mannara of 55 Rockview Terrace. He said the award will come in handy because he will be attending college next year.

Shall We Dance?

The senior girls at Bishop Kearney High School will host the annual Father/Daughter Dinner Dance on Monday, May 4 at the Party House. Music will be provided by Len Hawley and his orchestra.

Seniors Joan Bleier and Brigid Hickey are coordinating the event with the help of moderator Sister Evelyn Marie.

AQ Theater May 8-10

The Aquinas Theater Arts Department will present "The Music Man" on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, May 8, 9, 10 in the school auditorium.

All tickets are $3. For further information call the school at 254-2020.

Deadline

The deadline for submitting news to the Courier-Journal is noon on Thursday preceding the following Wednesday's publication.

A Treat for Mother

The Parents' Organization of Nazareth Academy will host its second annual Communion Breakfast at 9:30 a.m., on Sunday, May 10, Mother's Day. A liturgy will be celebrated in the school's auditorium followed by breakfast in the cafeteria.

Chairing the event are John and Frances, Leuzzi and Robert and Virginia Casey.

"This isn't a money-making event," said John Leuzzi. "We just like to see families get together on Mother's Day."

The price is $1.50 per person and $6 per family. Reservations may be made by calling the school, 458-8583.

On and On and On and On

Just about anything goes at an "Anything Goes" marathon. Forty-two Mercy and McQuaid students gathered recently for just such an event.

Benita from the School of the Holy Childhood were on hand to explain about the school.

What about the time everyone had? Margaret Hammele, CAM president, said "Everybody would have like a day off after it to recover!"

Dusting Off the Bases

The Mercy Christian Action Movement (CAM) sponsored the fundraiser from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., on Sunday, April 12 to raise money for May Day, and the School of the Holy Childhood. McDonald's and CAM supplied food and Jo-Mor's, Loews, and Burger King offered prizes to lucky participants.

The high school softball season opened last Monday with Nazareth Academy playing St. Agnes. Both schools are members of the Private-Parochial League that also includes Mercy, Cardinal Mooney, Bishop Kearney, Harley, Allendale, and Columbia. The season at Nazareth began March 18 with tryouts for the team, and continues until June.

Winners Circle

RapAround weekly will run a photo of a group of students taken somewhere in the diocese. One person will be circled and if that person brings the clipping to the Courier-Journal before noon of the Tuesday following our publication date, he or she will receive $5. This week's photo was taken at McQuaid during lunch. The person circled should bring the clipping to Joan M. Smith, Courier-Journal, 114 South Union St., by noon, Tuesday, May 5 to receive $5.
