

N.Y. Catholic News Ceases Publication

New York (RNS) — The Catholic News ceased publication with the June 25 issue, according to the publisher of the lay-owned newspaper, Victor L. Ridder Sr.

The New York archdiocese announced in March that it planned to start its own paper in September — "Catholic New York."

The News has been owned and operated by succeeding members of the Ridder family since its founding in 1880 as a German language weekly. The English language edition was started six months later.

sister, Tammy, playing quietly by himself. But, unknown to Tammy, he was playing with matches.

Timmy had set a fire. Tammy, who came in for great praise last week from her family, saw the gravity of the situation and summoned help.

The neighbor, Pat Amato, on being told of the incident, rushed into the burning home and rescued little Timmy.

continue retroactive service to those who were graduated from St. Bernard's Seminary before some of the degree programs were established there.

Father Falcone also will teach at the institute. Joining him on the staff will be Father Joseph A. Hart and Dr. Joseph A. Torma, both from the seminary.

Father Hart has just completed his doctorate in Theology in Rome. He has been instructor of Dogmatic Theology at the seminary. Dr. Torma has been associate professor of Social Theology.

The Bishop Sheen collection of books, papers and memorabilia will be moved to the institute along with the St. Bernard's Seminary archives, the historical papers of the diocesan archives and the rare book collection.

Father Robert J. McNamara, who retired this year as professor of Church History at the seminary, will continue as archivist.

Father Falcone said that about half of the 80,000-volume library will be moved to the institute at 1000 S. Goodman St. The stacks will be adjacent to but not integrated as yet into the divinity schools' library. Both will be at the disposal of all students.

"We will be using their classrooms," he said, "and registration and courses will

Bishop Kearney Nephew Dies

New York — Donald L. Kearney, nephew of the late Bishop James E. Kearney, died last week on Fire Island at the age of 63.

Mr. Kearney was the former chairman of the Television Bureau of Advertising, former president and director of sales of Corinthian Broadcasting and national sales manager of the film syndication division of the American Broadcasting Company. He was among the first to sell advertising for television, according to the New York Times.

Mr. Kearney had been under treatment for heart problems. He was a resident of Manhattan and is survived by his wife, the former Josephine Calvelli; two sons, James E. and George J., and his mother, Mona Sheridan Kearney.

and watch, Timmy proudly will march up the aisle of Our Lady of Mercy Church to receive, for the first time, the Body and Blood of the God who so loves him...

It was then that Mrs. Amato seized on the idea that Timmy should have religious education and the sacraments.

At her encouragement, the Haucks entered Timmy into the special religious education program at St. Charles Borromeo Church.

And next Sunday, as family and friends from as far away as Florida stand

Father Lioi Takes Post in Louvain

Father Frank E. Lioi, former rector of St. Bernard's Seminary, has been named director of Planning and Development for the American College, University of Louvain, Belgium.

Bishop Matthew H. Clark, in releasing Father Lioi for service at the college, said that his appointment is a tribute to the fine work which he has accomplished in Rochester.

The American College of Louvain, founded in 1857 by the U.S. bishops, provides seminary formation for students from dioceses throughout the United States. Father Lioi's new position will involve student recruitment, public relations and fund development.

Father Lioi was ordained in 1967 by the late Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, who himself was a graduate of the Catholic University of Louvain. Father Lioi has been associate pastor at St. John the Evangelist in Greece. Annunciation in Rochester and has assisted weekends at Holy Spirit in Penfield and currently at St. Salome's in Irondequoit.

He attended the Rochester diocesan seminaries and upon disclosed that three diocesan programs will have their "administrative offices only" at the institute — Permanent Diaconate, Ministry to Priests and Continuing Education.

FATHER LIOI

further study received a Master of Divinity degree retroactively from St. Bernard's Seminary. He began his liturgical studies at Notre Dame University and completed them at Catholic University where he was awarded a Master of Arts in Liturgical Studies.

St. Bernard's Seminary gave him an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree last May. He joined the seminary faculty in 1975 as assistant professor of Liturgical Studies and was named by Bishop Joseph L. Hogan as sixth rector of St. Bernard's in 1977.

Words of Our Lady

"When you see a night lit up by an unknown light, know that it is the sign God gives you that He is about to punish the world for its crimes by means of war, hunger, and persecution of the Church and the Holy Father."
