Children's Center Fest Yields Hundreds of Smiles

The Mary Cariola Children's Center hosted a Spring Festival on Friday, May 29, at the center's Penfield location on Baird Road. Some 100 severely handicapped youngsters joined in the festival fun that featured a nursery rhymes theme. The day included a parade of 11 floats made by the children and center staff and also a performance by the Penfield High School Jazz Ensemble. Clockwise, from left, Jeri Lynn Jones, in wheelchair, Anna Kelly, right, and center aide Patsy Hansen are all dressed up as clowns for their part in the parade; Otis Eddington portrays his favorite World War I flying ace; Donald Burke, left, executive director of the center, presents teacher Julie Bieg and Stacey Klug with a prize for their float; Mark Wade as Linus copies his namesake and catches some sleep during a break in the festivities.

Judge Gives Berrigans Three Years In Prison For G.E. Plant Protest

Norristown, Pa. (RNS) — Philip and Daniel Berrigan received a 3- to 10-year prison term for their part in an anti-war break-in at a General Electric Company missile guidance systems plant.

The Berrigans and six co-defendants known as the Plowshares Eight were convicted in March of criminal mischief, conspiracy and burglary.

The convictions arose from an action of the defendants on Sept. 9, 1980, when they broke into the General Electric Re-entry Division plant in nearby King of Prussia, Pa.

Using sledge hammers, the group smashed the nose cones of two Mark 12A Minuteman III missiles in what they said was an action symbolizing the Biblical injunction to "beat the swords into plowshares."

The group also poured what they said was their own blood over a set of documents in a plant office.

Company officials estimated damage at from $10,000 to $30,000.

Judge Samuel W. Salus of the Montgomery County Court of Appeals imposed sentences on the eight defendants and immediately revoked their bail, saying, "the bottom line is that the defendants violated criminal law and liberty has its bounds."
