

Novices

Brothers J. Sean Thompson, Paul T. Haefner, and J. Cosmas Shaw have been received as novices in the Congregation of Christian Brothers. The three are all Rochester natives. Bishop Austin B. Vaughan presided over the ceremonies at St. Joseph's Church in Kingston, Aug. 1.

Gathered
In Sacred
Space

Remember the childhood jingle you used to pantomime with your fingers?

Here is the church:
Here is the steeple:
Open the doors
And see all the people.

Despite its simplicity, the rhyme does remind us of a very important concept. Sacred space is concerned with both place and people. The gathering of the Christian community at worship gives the architectural space its reason for being. And the building becomes more than just a work of art; it expresses and shapes the faith of the worshipping community.

In noble simplicity, church architecture serves to enhance and enrich the liturgical action. Over-decoration and a clutter of unused furnishings only suffocate the sacramental sign under a pile of distracting busyness. High vaulted ceilings and long expansive aisles dwarf the community into insignificance and overwhelm it with a false sense of insecurity. Attention to a human scale creates an atmosphere of conscious awareness of one another and brings both building and people into a comfortable, balanced perspective.

Furnishings and structures that compartmentalize and separate, destroy the integrity of communal worship by erecting barriers of isolation. The eucharistic liturgy as a time of communal prayer is best reflected in open areas and flexible, non-restrictive seating arrangements. A dynamic presence of God in word and sacrament and people is actualized in the shape and size and structure of the place in which that presence dwells.

On Sunday, as Christian community, we celebrate this presence of God in our midst. Joined in our common bondedness of faith, we gather to worship the One in whom we have found life and hope and love. Through baptism we have entered into the paschal mystery of a dying/rising savior. Thus, as people of God, we become a space within a space. By our very act of gathering we evoke the presence of the Lord among us. "Where two or three are gathered in my name, there I am in your midst." (Mt. 18:20) St. Paul speaks of Christians as "temples of the Holy Spirit." (1 Cor. 6:19) Peter calls us "living stones built up into a house of God." (1 Pt. 2:5)

As sacred space, then, we "enclose" each other by our hospitality and our presence to each other. Our mutual awareness of one another creates a sense of community in the unity of God with us. The merging of God with his people pushes itself beyond the limited moments of Sunday liturgy to the unlimited opportunities of daily Christian living. The perimeters of sacred space created by a Christian people reach out to embrace a wider world.

Within each of us is that indefinite, yet very real sacred place wherein we face our Creator. In this interior space of contemplation, we do not withdraw from the gathered community, but rather discover within ourselves the image of that God we have met in others. It becomes the hallowed inner spring from which flows the life of faith we share in Christ with those around us.

God does not need space — we do! In our architectural settings, our presence to one another, and our inner contemplation we find a tangible space in which to meet the intangible mystery of God-in-our-midst.
