

MS Benefit

The third annual Commemorative Fashion Show, sponsored by friends of the late Stanley Mores, with clothing from Mores Fashions, will take place Oct. 6 at the Americana Hotel with benefits going to the Rochester Area Multiple Sclerosis Society. A social hour at 11 a.m. will be followed by a noon luncheon. Seated above are co-chairmen Mrs. Jack Montesano and Mrs. George Brauch; standing above are Shelley Mores and models Alla Swanton and Judy Kaltenbach. Tickets are $15 a person.

Wayne Groups Slate IYDP Conference

Newark — The Wayne Council for the International Year of the Disabled will hold a conference on making buildings accessible Oct. 23 at the Rowntowner here.

Participants will also be offered tours of a Community Residence, the Association for Retarded Citizens Workshop, Newark-Wayne Hospital's Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy Units, and the Newark Developmental Center.

Performances will be staged by the Newark Mental Health Players and by "The Kids Project," a puppet show depicting disabilities.

One of the conference's aims is to advise local businessmen and merchants of the funding available to aid them in making their buildings accessible. Following the conference a pamphlet will be available listing those businesses and organizations in Wayne County that are accessible to the disabled, according to Norman Brust of the Newark Developmental Center.

On the evening of the conference, a basketball game between the Rochester Wheels and area businessmen will be held at 7:30 at the Newark Developmental Center gym.

Honorary co-chairmen of the event are Marvin Decker, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, and Harry Hallow, supervisor from Williamson.

Rep. Frank Horton will be the keynote luncheon speaker. Further information is available by contacting the developmental center, (716) 331-1700, ext. 220 or 386.

All in the Family

Back to School ... At Last!

As this is being written, school is less than a week away and, yes, I must confess to looking forward to opening day.

Granted, the first week I will droop around the house missing the sound of the refrigerator door opening and closing every 23 seconds; the excited yelps of the dog being rough-housed; the inane ("I'm in love with the new teller") lyrics emanating from the stereo, the sweaty kisses delivered nonchalantly as they make their way from soccer field to shower.

But, that will soon pass and I will take up my daily schedule that I find constructive, productive and satisfying and which has been dispensed with over the summer because of the kids.

There are a lot of things they can't stand to have me do.

The first is any prolonged work at the typewriter.

Warned long ago not to interrupt, they come down in their pajamas and sit across from me silently, accusingly making the completion of a simple, declarative sentence an impossibility.

Secondly, they cannot stand seeing me try to diet. "Gosh, Mom, you don't know what you're missing!" they'll yell cheerily as they slurp down just blended chocolate milk shakes, frost a batch of warm brownies, slide double-cheese pizza bagels from the toaster oven.

Next I plan to reinstate my own version of aerobic dancing. Clutching their middles, weak from mirth, they signal to each other. "Hey, come watch Mom prance around exercising — it's a blast."

And, finally, I shall leaf through as many catalogs or fashion magazines as slowly as I like without someone bending over me, demanding, "Puh-lease turn back that page for a minute — you just missed" the most fantastic purple, fringed bikini...
