 Less than 40 new home building permits per year in Rochester
 18% population decline in ten years with projections to fall 33% by 2000 to 160,000
 Minority youth unemployment at 25%
 High School dropout rate at 40%

VOTE MARTIN LINSKY FOR CITY COUNCIL CITIZENS PARTY D

There is ONE PARTY that says spending billions for jails is not the answer to crime.
 ONE PARTY that thinks a job in a decent environment is a basic right.
 ONE PARTY that says no to corporate power in our city and country.
 ONE PARTY whose platform demands a public power utility.

Martin thinks our city can be revitalized. While not pretending to have all the answers he proposes:

- A full employment plan for Rochester, creating new jobs with technical assistance to new businesses, encouragement of community and worker owned businesses, and lower utility rates through municipal power.
- A Rochester Common Fund of local investment and pension funds to build local industry with local investments.
- A housing plan that will rebuild homes by giving them to Rochester residents. Our housing stock must be revitalized not torn down.
- An energy plan of conservation, industrial co-generation, and a public power feasibility study. Such a plan will save us money and attract new jobs for years to come.
- Crime and rape prevention utilizing local women's groups and a reinvigorated Neighborhood Watch Program. The rising problem of youth crime must be addressed in our schools, neighborhoods, and families.
- Elimination of property taxes in favor of more progressive income taxes. A hard look must also be taken at lowering sales tax rates as these are very regressive and unfair taxes.
- A municipal fire insurance company to lower rates and keep our dollars at home. Such a company could improve fire prevention and save lives and homes.

Word for Sunday

We Learn By Example

Sunday's Readings: (R3) Mt. 22:34-40. (R1) Ex. 20:20-26. (R2) 1 Thes. 1:5-10.

"You became imitators of us and of the Lord... Thus you became a model for all the believers in Macedonia and Achaia." In next Sunday's second reading, Paul commends the early Christians at Thessalonica for giving good example. By first imitating him and the Lord, they in turn become models to be imitated by others. One good example begets another. "Men trust their eyes rather than their ears," wrote the philosopher Seneca. "Consequently the road by precept is long and tedious, but example short and effectual."

Every parent desires to be an example to his or her children at the various stages of their life. This is evidenced by the inscriptions one can read on plaques for sale in religious goods stores. Such inscriptions may read, "Oh, to be half as wonderful as my child thought I was and only half as stupid as my teenager thinks I am."

A study disclosed that if both Mom and Dad attend church regularly, 72 percent of their children remain faithful to religion later in life. It also showed that:

- If only Dad attended church regularly, 55 percent would remain faithful;
- If only Mom attended church regularly, 15 percent would remain faithful!
- If neither attended regularly, only six percent remained faithful.

The statistics speak for themselves. Parental example is of superlative importance in raising a child. The best efforts of both Church and school can be negated, wiped out, by the bad example of parents. It is almost a truism to say, "You can take the child out of the home, but you cannot take the home out of the child."

If parents believe Mass is important for their children, then they must demonstrate it is important for them as well. Family Sunday Mass can be one of the most beautiful experiences of growing up for any child.

A man got married. After the honeymoon, he disappeared. His wife heard nothing from him except that she received a check from him once a month. One evening he walked in, kissed her, and sat down to be fed. She was incensed. Bewildered, the man asked, "What's the matter? I married you, didn't I? I told you I love you. I send you a check every month. What more do you want?"

A child enrolled in school. For several days he was absent. When the truant officer came around, his mother said, "Oh, we feel Jimmy can be as good a scholar at home as at school, so we let him play in the backyard and learn from nature."

A man volunteered for the Army, took the oath of allegiance, and was inducted. But he failed to report for duty. When the military police came, he said, "I've been shooting since I was a kid. I don't have anything more to learn from the Army. You just call me when you're ready to fight."

And do parents think all religion is — is getting the child baptized?

A friend told us this little story about his six-year-old daughter, Therese.

Her mother read her the story about her patron saint, and the small girl thought it was beautiful.

At the end, her mother said: "Now why can't you be a good little girl all the time like St. Therese?"

The little girl thought and then so innocently said: "Maybe because I don't have as good parents as she did."

In child development, parental example is stronger than anything else. Psychologists call it "repetition compulsion."
