Sullivan has visited Ireland many times since his first trip in 1955. He can trace his heritage back to Cork through his paternal grandmother, O'Connor, as well as back to Kerry and Limerick via other branches of the family tree. He is determined that Cork join Rochester's sisters: Bamako, Mali; Caltanissetta, Sicily; Cracow, Poland; Rehovot, Israel; Rennes, France; Wurzburg, Germany.

of the Irish emigrant. Thousands of Irish emigrated to the U.S. during the potato famines of the 1800s and many settled in the Rochester area. This has created a strong sentimental and emotional tie with Ireland.

With this community interest and backing, the next stop in the Rochester/Cork project is a visit from Cork dignitaries who will be touring the northeastern U.S. Sullivan is excited about the proposed visit and will be on hand to match Irish charm with Irish charm to persuade Cork to join Rochester's international family.

Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament will take place at noon tomorrow, Dec. 3, at Blessed Sacrament Church. Rosary will be recited at 12:15, benediction will be celebrated at 5 and the regular daily Mass at 5:20 p.m. will close the rites.
