

Camping Traditions Studied

Raymond Tette, CCD, attended the American Camping Association convention in Martinsville, Ind. Tette is the executive director of Camp Stella Maris on Conesus Lake. The camp serves a population of 1,200 boys and girls, and features a program of swimming, sailing, water-skiing, windsurfing, and spiritual and leadership design.

As the organized camping movement enters its second century of working with youth and adults, the convention focused on "Tradition in Change," examining both camping's origin and future. Those interested in learning more about the association and its public services may write to American Camping Association, Bradford Woods, Martinsville, Ind. 46151.

Aquinas Card Draws 1,000

More than 1,000 area boxing fans crowded into the tiny Aquinas Institute gymnasium for the 50th edition of the Championship Bouts on Friday night, March 12.

Rogers (white trunks) winces from a blow delivered by junior Pete Guelli in their junior middleweight fight.

The evening's program was dedicated to the late William McCarthy, a former alumnus and teacher at the school.

Left, Mark Murphy puts the finishing touch on a left uppercut to the chin of Doug Zapf in a bantamweight match between the two juniors.

Among the awards given following the card were: flyweight Nick Santillo, Freshman Fighter of the Night; light heavyweights Bernie Martinez and Trevor Powell, Fight of the Night; welterweight Bob Bell, Fighter of the Night; and Doug Zapf, Most Improved Fighter.

Churches, Media to Be Topic at Ithaca College

Ithaca — A week-long conference on religious communications, "Churches and Media: Exploring Policy and Practice," will be sponsored by Ithaca College, July 11-17.

Father Lewis Brown, associate pastor of Immaculate Conception here, and Dr. Thomas Bohn, dean of the School of Communications of the college, developed the program. The conference will focus on major policy issues facing churches and their use of mass media and will emphasize the analysis of format and program effectiveness.

The program will be presented in two segments: 1. Analysis and exploration of communications policy, 2. analysis of specific format and program presentation. Participants may attend one or both segments.

Religious communicators and pastoral workers of all faiths will be invited.

Further information and registration forms are available from Churches and Media, Summer Sessions, Ithaca College, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850, telephone (607) 274-3525.

KEARNEY MASS

The Bishop Kearney Parents Club will celebrate its annual Family Mass at 10 a.m., Sunday, March 28, at Bishop Kearney High School.

Celebrant will be Father Paul J. Cuddy. The Mass and ensuing continental breakfast will be in the school cafeteria. Tony and Gilda DiPrima are chairpersons. All families are invited.

Check Received

Francine Patella, diocesan director of Campaign for Human Development, said last week that a check from the national campaign office had been received by Ken Siegel, director of Cephas-Attica, as of last Wednesday.

and that the program for which the money was given was under way. Siegel was unavailable for comment.

Album Released

The Coldwater Folk Group from Holy Ghost Church, Gates, has released a new album titled "Coldwater on Track." Among the numerous selections is one dedicated to Bishop Matthew H. Clark, named after the ordinary's motto: "His Love Endures Forever." On Monday, March 8, representatives from the folk group presented the bishop with an album during a visit to the Pastoral Center. From left, Jack Risewick, who wrote much of the music on the album; Father Gannaro J. Ventura, pastor of Holy Ghost; Ron Scuteri, who arranged the verses for the dedicated song based on the 136th Psalm; and Bishop Clark. Proceeds from the record will be used to build a scholarship fund for the youth of the parish and may be obtained from the rectory at 220 Coldwater Road.
