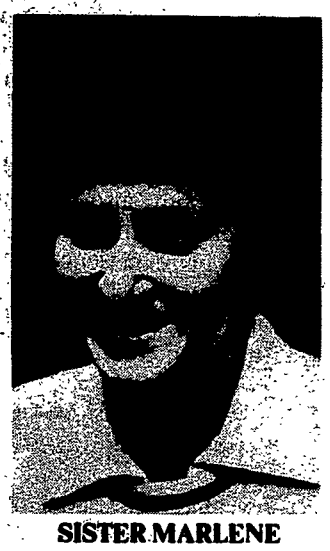
Sister Marlene, RSM Takes Loyola Post

Sister Marlene Vigna, pastoral assistant at St. John the Evangelist Church on Humboldt Street, has joined the Summer faculty of the Institute of Pastoral Studies at Loyola University of Chicago.



SISTER MARLENE

The 42-year-old Sister of Mercy will teach "The Uses of Scripture," a three-credit course which will encourage participants "to seek out creative techniques which will help them to relate the Scripture to various dimensions of pastoral life," she said. The course is designed to "lead participants to experiment with ways of keeping Scripture alive: in grounding one's ministry and faith; in personal discernment and development; in theological reflection; in prayer, homilizing and the Rites of Christian Initiation."

She holds a bachelor's degree in English from Mary Manse College, Toledo, Ohio; a masters in British and American literature from Indiana University at Bloomington; and a masters in pastoral studies from Loyola.

In addition she is writing several pieces for "Christian Initiation Resources," a quarterly journal for catechumenate directors published by William H. Sadlier.
