

PETER ZAEPFEL

PAUL ZAEPFEL

Aquinas Twins . . . So Much Alike Yet Individual, Too

Being identical twins, Peter Zaepfel and Paul Zaepfel naturally are look-alikes. But the similarities between the two graduating Aquinas seniors run deeper than that.

They are well-matched in academic abilities, their love for music and their other extracurricular activities.

Peter ranks second in his graduating class; Paul third. Each is a member of the Permanent St. Thomas Club along with only five other graduates. Both will attend John Carroll University in Cleveland and will major in mathematics and science.

Each has been awarded three different academic scholarships to John Carroll — the American Values Scholarship based on a competitive essay and SAT scores, the President's Award for academic excellence, and the Lawrence Monville, S.J. Scholarship for Physics.

Both are recipients of State Regents scholarships and were offered academic scholarships to LeMoyné College and St. Bonaventure University. Peter also was offered the President's Scholarship Award to St. John Fisher College.

Music, especially jazz, has been a special interest for Peter and Paul. Both have played alto saxophone in the Aquinas Band for four years and in the Jazz Ensemble for two.

Paul was awarded the John Philip Sousa Music Award for outstanding musicianship; Peter received the Louis Armstrong Award for exceptional jazz talent. Each has been cited for his solo and improvisation abilities.

According to Paul, one of his greatest challenges has been to establish a separate identity. To which Peter admits, "True. But we've always been good friends and have enjoyed doing many things together."
