

Only you can make these wishes come true.

Now, more than ever, the Volunteer Forum needs your help.

The Forum, operated by the American Red Cross, serves nearly 200 human-service agencies throughout the Rochester area. These organizations need volunteers—office workers, teachers, drivers, counselors, coaches, caring people, willing to give some of what they have to help someone else.

If you can't give your time, you can still help. The Forum's 1982 Holiday Wishbook lists the special needs of 123 agencies. By donating anything from a typewriter to a turkey, you can brighten the holidays for the people these agencies serve.

The Wishbook and Volunteer Opportunities Resource Directory—another Forum publication—are available at no charge through the Monroe County Library system. Or, you can call the Volunteer Forum at 275-9800 to find out where you're needed most.

Help make every wish in the Holiday Wishbook come true by calling the Volunteer Forum, today.

Doing more than meets the eye.
