

Seton Tour to Feature 'Old World' Dwellings

The annual Seton Tour of Homes, which this year will benefit the Ambulatory Medical/Surgical Procedure Center at St. Mary's Hospital, will this year focus on the old world architecture of five Rochester residences.

The list of homes made public last week includes:

- The home of Eugene and Joanne Cimino, a 25-room "French Country" style mansion at 43 East Blvd. The house features a circular staircase, vaulted ceilings, arched windows and eight fireplaces.

- The home of Nathan and Susan Robfogel, an "English Tudor" house at 5 East Blvd., dominated by a series of stained glass windows.

- The home of Arthur and Jane Inguaggiato, a "Tuscan" style villa at 2675 East Ave., decorated with oriental antiques and contemporary furnishings.

- The home of Bruce and Liz Kost, an "Early American" style dwelling at 210 Dartmouth St., decorated with antiques faithful to the period.

- Schlegel Corp. headquarters, the landmark Hiram Sibley mansion at 400 East Ave. The residence has been adapted to a work environment while retaining the structure's character through design and furniture styles of earlier periods.

All homes will be open to ticket holders 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday, June 4.

In addition to the featured homes, Edwards Restaurant, 13 S. Fitzhugh St., will serve a private luncheon to those on tour. Cost of the luncheon is $7, and seatings will be at 11:45 a.m. and 1 p.m. Reservations must be made before the day of the tour by calling the volunteer office at St. Mary's, 464-3255.

Father Bruce Hanson, pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, near the restaurant, has agreed to open the doors of the church between noon and 1:30 p.m. He will give a talk on the history and artifacts of the church at that time.

Tickets for the tour are $7 and are reserved by calling the hospital volunteer office, 464-3255.

Mrs. Russell Gugino of Eagle Rock Drive is tour chairman with Mrs. Joseph De Maria of Winton Road South.

'Special Arts' Highlighted At NTID

The Rochester observance of the state "Very Special Arts Festival" will be staged 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Tuesday, May 24 in the National Technical Institute for the Deaf's academic building on the campus of Rochester Institute of Technology.

According to spokesperson Thomas Madden, the day will include presentations of drama, dance, mime, music and art. Workshops will be given, he said, by handicapped students from public and private schools in the area.

The festival was established in 1976, and is sponsored by the state Committee on Arts for the Handicapped, a press release said.

The program is described as "not a competition, but an opportunity for students from public, private and parochial schools and agencies to share their accomplishments in the visual and performing arts with interested audiences."

Lorraine Amenda and Julia Hurley are coordinators for the event.

THOUGHTS TO CONSIDER

EDWIN SULEWSKI
FUNERAL DIRECTOR

When a person dies at home, what should you do?

You can call your funeral director for specific directions but here is a general procedure. First, contact your physician or emergency team. If the death is unexpected you should notify the police who will in turn notify the coroner. This will also assure that medical help can be given should there be confusion as to whether the person is dead. If the death was expected notify your physician for verification of death. If you wish, contact your clergy and relatives or friends who are close to you. When all medical and legal matters are cared for contact the funeral director who will take your loved one to the funeral home and provide you will support and assistance for the next several days.

"It makes me proud to be part of a team like this."

"It's my job to restore power as quickly, safely, and dependably as I possibly can. I know how much depends on it."

Electricity is as vital to modern life as water. RG&E troublemen, our first-line emergency team, make sure that whatever happens to interrupt electrical service is dealt with immediately. They're specialists in solving the tough ones.

"I always take that extra few minutes to test, check, and recheck. I have too much respect for electricity to try to take shortcuts."

Accidents with electricity usually happen in the home because people, and too often children, are careless or don't realize the potential for harm. Make sure your family respects electricity. If you want more information about electrical safety, we'll send it to you.

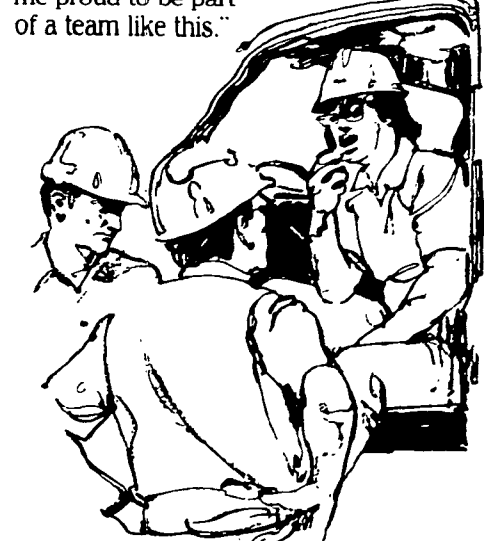

Walt Rogalski,
Troubleman First Class

"I get a lot of satisfaction getting power restored as fast as possible. I think people know the job we do is somewhat critical. It's got its hazards, and they appreciate our efforts. That's a good feeling too."

Working conditions for RG&E troublemen are generally harsh and often hazardous. They work in traffic, high on a pole or under the street, in subzero weather or sudden storms, and in the immediate vicinity of enormous amounts of electrical energy.

"We work under a buddy system. We all depend on each other and know how critical it is to do the job right. It makes me proud to be part of a team like this."

DEATHS

Bridget J. Dooley

Auburn — Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated by Fathers Edward Zimmer and Joseph Catanise for Miss Bridget J. (Bride) Dooley who died May 4, 1983 in Auburn Memorial Hospital after a brief illness.

Miss Dooley, a native of Dublin, Ireland, had been a resident of Auburn for more than 50 years.

She was well known among the diocesan clergy, having served as housekeeper in several rectories in former years.

She was a communicant of St. Mary's Church and a member of the Rosary and Scapular Society.

She is survived by several nieces and nephews.
