

The Crowd Assembles

Chalmers MacCormack, St. Patrick's in Aurora — I'm here because I believe in the cause of abolishing nuclear weapons and the threat of nuclear warfare. I thought the bishop's address was excellent. I was moved close to tears.

Kathy O'Donnell, St. Francis of Assisi — I'm here basically to say what everyone else is saying: we have an obligation to solve our problems without weapons. Period.

Bill McEvily, St. John the Evangelist in Greece — I support disarmament. I agree with what (Bishop Clark) said. It took courage. I do believe in action for the life of this planet. This (demonstration) is what Jesus had in mind.

The sights of the rally: The crowd assembles near a mobile stage on a wind-swept hillside overlooking Seneca Lake at Sampson State Park. The American flag is occasionally evident; and famous faces appear among the crowd, among them, Bishop Clark, and Sister Susan Schantz, president of the Diocesan Sisters Council.

Photos by
Anthony J. Costello and Terrance J. Brennan