Festival Choir Plans Open House

The Diocesan Festival Choir is planning an open house to celebrate the beginning of its 10th year from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 6, at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse, 4095 East Ave. Music lovers in general are invited as well as present and prospective members. Information about the group and its plans will be provided by members of the board.

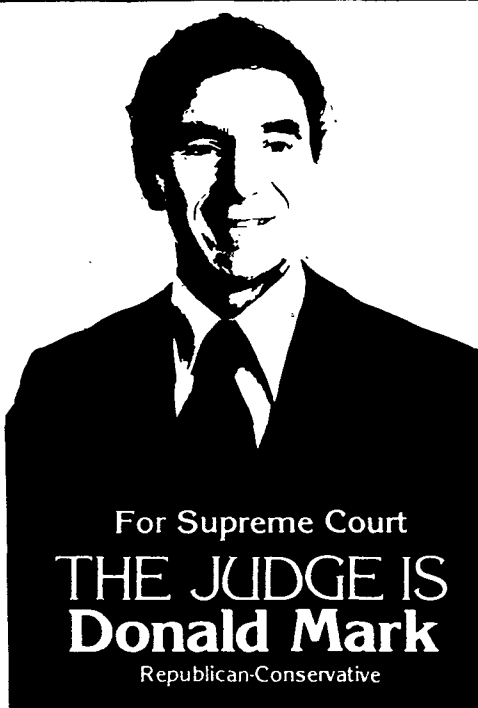

The group traditionally performs a major concert of sacred music in the Spring and smaller liturgical celebrations throughout the year. Next year the Passion and Resurrection sections of "The Messiah" will be performed April 1. The 75-voice choir was organized in 1974 by the diocesan Music Committee to give local choir members the opportunity to cooperate on challenging sacred music compositions. Those interested in joining the choir need not be trained singers, according to Sister Virginia Hogan, SSJ, music director.
