

Pro-Lifers Slate Contest for High School Orators

Waterloo — Don Peters of this city has been named area coordinator of the Pro-Life Oratorical Contest, a project of the National Pro-Life Oratorical Committee.

The contest, open to graduating high school seniors, will deal with issues concerning the pro-life movement. First prize will be $1,000.

Participants are to select one of three topics in favor of the right to life:

- The effects of abortion on society;
- The growing trend toward non-treatment of handicapped newborns;

• Is euthanasia ever justified?

The student is to give an oral presentation on his or her chosen topic, at least five minutes long, but not exceeding seven minutes.

A draft of the speech must be submitted to the local area coordinator at least five days prior to the local area preliminary round.

The first round will be held 2 p.m., April 8, at De Sales Regional High School in Geneva.

The semi-final round will be held April 28, at a site yet to be determined. Transportation for the preliminary winner and parents will be provided.

The final round will be held Saturday, May 19 in Albany for five finalists.

Among the panel of judges will be A. Lawrence Washburn, the pro-life attorney involved in the "Baby Jane Doe" case.

Participants will be judged on content, presentation, poise research and quality.
