

St. Ann's Residents Don Spring Hats for Fashion Show

With "The Blue Danube" playing in the background, the residents of St. Ann's home donned spring hats and promenaded down the length of Bishop Kearney Auditorium. The soon-to-be-annual spring hat fashion show was held on Thursday, May 16, with great enthusiasm as members of St. Ann's community displayed a wide variety of hats that spanned the last 50 years. These were sorted out from their own personal collections, as well as those of staff members and volunteers. Not surprisingly, the hats of yesteryear are very close to the new hat fashions of today.

With much clapping, waving and cheers from the audience, the show went very smoothly. Hats of every description were presented. Wide brimmed, short brimmed, feathers, satin and lace, a very distinguished golfer — and even a cowboy hat complete with a ya-hooing model — were just a small sampling of the fashions present.

Although everything was going smoothly onstage, backstage was another matter. Hats were flying as models stepped up for their returns to the runway with the next selection. In a good-natured manner, a few of the hats made encore appearances.

In addition to the fashion show, St. Ann's Home/The Heritage sponsored several other events to celebrate Older Americans' Month. To kick off the month, the home presented a balloon launch followed by Irondequoit Town Supervisor Eugene Mazzola presenting a proclamation declaring May Older Americans' Month in the town. Many St. Ann's residents attended a luncheon sponsored by McCurdy's for residents of long-term care facilities in Rochester.

Other events at St. Ann's were: a Resident Recognition Dinner; a Wellness Fair emphasizing the benefits of good nutrition and exercise; a craft, hobby and talent show; a "Salute to Our Centenarians" with Bishop Joseph L. Hogan; a May devotion to Mary; and outdoor entertainment by the Bishop Kearney Band.

"May is a very important time for our residents and families here at St. Ann's," said Sister Marie Michelle Peartree, president of the facility. "All across the country, people are honoring the many contributions our older Americans have made and continue to make to our society. I hope people will take the time during this special month to visit an old friend!"

Irene Schantz pauses a moment for the in-house video system residents were watching in other areas of the home.
