“IN THE MIDDLE OF THIS QUESTION HAUNTS ME”

The missionary spoke softly to the listeners in the church. His words, though soft, became engraved, burning, on their hearts.

*The children come to me, he said.
They come to school, walking five miles,
maybe six.
Their little faces are not round and full,
but thin and hollow; their eyes already tired.
I give them what I can; I teach them what I can.
But in the middle of the night this question
haunts me:
How can I tell them—
how can I truly put it across to these hollow-cheeked, tired children—
how can I tell them that God loves them?*

The missionary held out his arms, as if to embrace every listener in the church.

*I need you. I need you to pray for me.
I need the help you can give, which I can pass on, a sign of God's love.*

The missionary will not be here to plead with us on Mission Sunday. He is home in Africa.

But his words are here.
And you are here.
