Bishop Kearney Marching Kings triumph in St. Patrick's Day parade competition

The Bishop Kearney Marching Kings recently won first-place honors in the 226th annual St. Patrick's Day Parade in New York City. The band scored 95.2 points out of a possible 100 points.

Bishop Kearney's nearest competitors — Salem High School of Salem, Ohio, and Cardinal Dougherty High School of Philadelphia, Pa. — earned scores of 88.8 and 88.5, respectively. Forty-six competing bands were judged by six individual judges on the basis of appearance, marching, musical effectiveness and showmanship.

Band director Glenn K. Call traveled to New York City to accept the award at a communion breakfast at the Sheraton Centre on Sunday, May 3. Timothy H. O'Regan, chairman, Music & Bands, Judging/Awards, noted that the Marching Kings bested bands from New York City, Long Island, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and upstate New York.

O'Regan commended Call and assistant director Dan Burke, as well as the band's 60 musicians, two banner carriers, four honor guards, eight twirlers and 40 color guard members, among others within the school staff and community.

The Bishop Kearney Marching Kings also did well in field band competition last fall. Competing in the AA Open classification, designed for schools four times the size of Bishop Kearney, the Marching Kings won meets in Medina, Victor and Canandaigua. They also helped Holy Childhood School kick off the celebration of its 25th anniversary year.

In addition, concert band members played for the school's annual musical, "The Music Man," on May 7, 9 and 10. On Saturday, May 16, the marching unit will perform in Rochester's annual Lilac Parade.

What are you looking for in a college?

KELLIE FOSTER, junior

I would like to find a co-ed college that offers a strong program in my chosen field at a reasonable tuition. The student-teacher ratio should be small in order to enhance the scholastic benefits. Also, the college should offer a wide variety of courses including a study-abroad program and also many extra-curricular activities.

AMY ZAMPI, junior

Life experience is what I am looking for in a college. College life should teach you how to live on your own and be independent. It is important to learn how to get along with other people and support yourself. When I leave college, I hope to be more mature and better prepared to take on life's challenges.

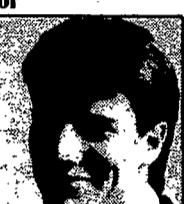

TOM VANDEWATER, junior

The things that make a college stand out are different for each person, but I look for a good learning environment that is balanced with many outside activities. College should give you an edge in the job market, but should also give you a chance to grow and mature. Other things to look for are a low faculty-to-student ratio, scholarship funds and the campus. The most important things are that you are comfortable with the college you choose, and that you have the opportunity to work to your full capacity.

TED MANCINI, junior

I look for a college that offers the programs that interest me. I also consider the size of the school. It is important to me that the school has a good campus life as well as academics. At a large school, I think that the student-faculty ratio is too large and people don't have the same advantages they might at a smaller school.

Area Catholic schools celebrate the merry, merry month of May

Joy was the theme of Notre Dame High School's traditional May Day ceremony, celebrated this year on Friday, May 8. May Queen Doneen Smith, escorted by James Smith, paid homage to the Blessed Virgin Mary, patroness of Notre Dame, in a liturgical setting. Father Vincent McDonough, school chaplain, was the main celebrant and homilist. Father Chris Linsler and Father Joseph Sammons served as concelebrants.

Other members of the Notre Dame May court, all of whom were elected by the senior class, were Betty Ann Berliner, J.P. Bernatavitz, Ann Snyder, David Ferris, Molly Steed, Scott Hamilton, Theresa Sweeney and Carlos Santa Ines.

Our Lady of Mercy High School's annual May Day celebration will be held Friday, May 22. The school's 58th observation of the event will also honor Mary, patroness of Mercy High School.

Senior Amy Diehl was selected by her classmates to be this year's May Queen at Mercy. Diehl and her court will wear long white dresses and carry flowers. The liturgy is traditionally planned by the May Queen, who will give a brief reflection on Mary.

Other members of the court include senior honor attendants Jenny Carnevale and Alison Smith; crown bearer Cindy Agustin; proclamator Beth DeClerk; senior attendants Maura Clifford, Sondra Imperati, Mary Sullivan, Julie Seitz and Karen Crosby; junior trail bearers Julie Adams, Aileen D'Ambrosia, Charlene Nichols and Laura Wambach; and junior attendants Amy Feol, Jean Marie Rimlinger, Kelly Seitz, Teresa Curran and Juliana Buck.

The day will end with a reception for the queen, her court and their families, the senior class and faculty members.

St. Bernard's co-sponsoring ecumenical service for Lilac Festival

Before spectators and participants assemble for the 10K race on Sunday, May 17, they will have the chance to attend an 8 a.m. Ecumenical Worship Service in the chapel of nearby Colgate Rochester Divinity School/Bexley Hall/Crozer Theological Seminary.

Located at the corner of Highland Avenue and South Goodman Street, the divinity school campus is within walking distance of the main festival sites and has one of the loveliest views in the city.

The 40-minute worship service is open to the public and will be centered on the theme of Christian unity. Larry L. Greenfield, president of Colgate Rochester Divinity School/Bexley Hall/Crozer Theological Seminary, will deliver the sermon and Fr. Sebastian A. Falcone, president-dean of St. Bernard's Institute, will preside.
