Bishop Clark to dedicate facility for homeless women, children

Bishop Matthew H. Clark will dedicate Liberty Manor, a new facility for homeless women, on Monday, June 8, at 1 p.m. Liberty Manor is located in the Covent Building of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Parish, 1111 Joseph Ave., Rochester.

According to Carolyn A. Portanova, director of the Restart Substance Abuse Services, Liberty Manor will be the first facility of its kind to be established exclusively for women outside of New York City, and the first residential substance abuse treatment center to be established west of Syracuse for indigent people.

The residential treatment facility was established through a $215,000 state grant. Additional funding to purchase furniture for the facility is being provided through several private foundation grants and the generosity of individuals from the Rochester community.

Restart's Liberty Manor will offer a six-month residential program and a year of follow-up care, designed to meet the needs of women and preschool children from Monroe, Livingston, Ontario and Wayne Counties. Women will receive counseling and drug education as well as instruction leading to a high school equivalency diploma. Other services will include life skills training, career planning and volunteer work experience.

Julio Martinez, New York state commissioner of substance abuse, will be among those attending the dedication, which is open to the public.

Restart Substance Abuse services, a program of the Catholic Family Center of the Rochester diocese, has been in operation since 1974, when it was established in response to the emerging problems of drug abuse in society.
