

Mercy alumna to speak at 56th graduation

Mercy graduate Suzanne Johnston (class of 1961), now principal of the Wilson Magnet School, will address graduates at Our Lady of Mercy High School's 56th commencement exercises, which are scheduled for Wednesday, June 17. The 163 graduates will receive their diplomas in ceremonies beginning at 8 p.m. in the Eastman Theatre.

Carole Boos of Honeoye Falls is class valedictorian. She plans to study business management at Cleveland's Case Western University. Astrophysics is the intended major of salutatorian Denise Marentette of Pittsford, who plans to enroll at Penn State University.

When facing the future, trust in tradition. Trust in the past.

The future is unknown to us, and we can only speculate on what it may bring. History, however, can provide one rule of thumb: things of quality will endure. The traditions of the Jesuit teachers have endured.

For centuries they have clung to the belief that only when a person has developed a full range of human qualities is that person truly prepared for life.

Canisius College has carried on this liberal arts tradition since 1870. Nestled quietly in a residential area in New York State's second largest city, our ideal size and location make it very conducive to learning and growing.

So remember, the future will always be unknown to us, but Canisius graduates will have the knowledge and skills to handle whatever it may bring.
