In the nine years since Prindle embarked upon his unlikely career, he has seen it gain in both visibility and professional status. His own experience indicates that those gains have been achieved by individual rather than ioint efforts. "If you're good at what you do, if you project yourself in a competent, professional way, then people will treat you as a professional," he said. "I've been lucky. I've never had people challenge me or put me down.

On the other hand, he has heard others relate horror stories about unjust treatment at the hands of autocratic pastors. "It bothers everyone when you hear stories about people getting a bum deal," he said. "You not only feel sorry for them, but you wonder, 'Could the same thing happen to

To date, Prindle terms the pastors with whom he has worked "extremely coopera-But that security extends no further than the next round of diocesan appointments. "There's a need for more official

St. Joseph's School, 39 Gebhardt Road, Pen-fall. The classes will meet Monday through Friday mornings on a staggered schedule. Classes for three-year-old children will be conducted on Tuesday and Thursday, and four-year-old children will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. Joan Crowley will teach the preschool classes with the assistance of ber to an enrollment of more than 500 students in preschool through grade eight, representing a sizeable increase over last September's enrollment of 422. This enrollment increase can be largely attributed to the new preschool program and the addition of 25 students from St.

Jerome's School in East Rochester, which policies and better enforcement of them," he concluded.

Aside from job security, salary and benefits are the only factors that might prompt Prindle to consider a career change. His family is currently able to enjoy a comfortable, middle-class lifestyle only because his wife's income is substantially higher than his.

Job security and salary scales are among the areas being addressed by the diocesan Personnel Commission. The Religious Educator's Council, a newly formed group that is lobbying on personnel issues, has also contributed to what Prindle regards as a hopeful scenario. "In a good positive political sense, you need to nudge the system to. make it work," he said. "As long as things continue to improve, I see this as very workable."

The fringe benefit Prindle appreciates most, however, has nothing to do with money. Rather, it's the people with whom he works. "They are the most loving, generous and faith-filled people I have met in my life," he said. "They are a treasure beyond telling, both personally and professionally, and they are a big boost to my faith as a man, preschool aid and kindergarten; Judy

The administration of St. Joseph's also has come curriculum changes in store for this fall, particularly on the junior-high level. French and Spanish will be taught three days a week, and the study skills course will be offered to all iunior high students this year. This course is designed to prepare seventh and eighth graders for the demands of high school course

The theme for the new school year at St.

Joseph's is: "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. (Matthew 6:21)." According to Sister Nancy Kelley, principal, this theme will be incorporated into many school activities.

Retrouvaille program set for Rochester in October

The next Retrouvaille program in the Rochester area will begin with a weekend session October 9-11. The Retrouvaille program offers help to couples who are experiencing difficulty in their marriages, in hopes of healing those relationships. Couples who register will participate in a weekend experience at the East Avenue Inn in Rochester from 7:30 p.m. on Friday evening to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The group will continue to meet for six additional evening sessions.

The program, which is presented by three married couples and a priest, offers hurting couples time away from the distractions of home, job, and children, and a time to concentrate on themselves and their marriages. The focus of the weekend is on communication as well as other aspects of relationships,

THOUGHTS TO CONSIDER

EDWIN SULEWSKI FUNERAL DIRECTOR

Why should I consult my family about my funeral plans?

Funerals are for the living! Many times plans made without family consultations will leave family members unhappy and dissatis-fied. Telling close family members that you would like to have a serious discussion about your plans for your funeral and inviting them. to help with the arrangements assures they understand your desires. It will also offer them an opportunity to tell you what they would prefer. Planning a funeral ahead of time is helpful. Don't neglect to take into consideration the wishes of those who will live after you. They are the ones who will benefit or suffer from the choices you make.

We purchase all forms of insurance to protect our family & assets, not because we expect the worst to happen, but to be prepared. Doesn't it make sense then to prepare for what will happen. Let our trained counselors assist you with the many options available in planning for a worry-free future
