Diocese offers programs for adult faith enrichment

The diocesan Office of Religious Education will sponsor workshops on Scripture, reconciliation, The Leaven Movement, and facilitating skills this fall.

Sister Anne Marie Fehrenbach, a theology teacher at Cardinal Mooney High School, will present "I have loved you with an everlasting love," an evening of Scripture reflection and enrichment for parish Bible study leaders, on Friday, Oct. 7, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at Guardian Angels School in Henrietta. She will repeat the program on Friday, Dec. 2, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at St. Patrick's in Corning. The fee is $5 per participating parish.

On Tuesday, Sept. 27, Father Joseph A. Hart, a faculty member at St. Bernard's Institute, will examine the demands of evangelization upon the Church in "What does it mean to be a reconciling community?" The program begins at 8 p.m. in the Good Shepherd School gymnasium. Registration is $2 in advance and $5 at the door.

Non-profit groups invited to use bank's message sign

Columbia Banking is offering use of its electronic message sign — which is visible to motorists as they enter the city by South Clinton off Interstate 490 - to display the messages of non-profit groups free of charge for 24-hour periods.

To qualify, groups must be non-profit and have a message of community-wide interest. The sign can also be used to advertise events that benefit charities, according to Liz Mills, advertising officer for Columbia.

In addition to aiding charities, the service may also be used as a means of educating the public about where they can find help in vari-about social change by developing "a network of people exploring structural systems of injustice?' A series of programs to introduce the movement will be offered beginning in September and continuing through May at four parishes: Christ the King, St. Catherine of Siena in Mendon; St. John the Evangelist, Humboldt Street, and St. Francis DeSales, Geneva. The fee for programs and materials is $36 for a full year or $5 per individual session.

RCIA coordinators, Bible study facilitators and other catechetical leaders are invited to "Sharing Your Faith, Part II," a six-session, 15-hour training program in skills training for facilitators. Sessions will be offered from 7:30-10 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 7, Dec. 5, Jan. 30, Feb. 20, March 13 and April 10, at Seton Junior High, located at Our Lady of Lourdes Parish, Rochester. The fee for the entire series is $30, or $6 per individual session.

For more information or to register for any of the above programs, contact the diocesan Office of Religious Education, (716)328-3210.

ous situations, said Joseph Calabrese, president of the United Way of Greater Rochester.

Organizations wishing to use the sign should send their messages, in writing, to the Marketing Department at Columbia Banking, 31 E. Main St., Rochester, 14614. The message can be up to five lines, with no more than 14 characters per line. Applicants also should submit their first, second and third choices of the date they would like the message to run. Requests will be honored on a first-come, firstserved basis.

Rochester mayor declares Old-timer's Sports Day

Rochester Mayor Thomas P. Ryan, Jr. has proclaimed Friday, September 16, as Oldtimer's Sports Day in the Flower City. The proclamation was made in conjunction with a sports reunion for oldtimers, which will be held at the Diplomat Party House at 11 a.m. on Friday. More than 400 athletes are expected to turn out.

Those athletes who have not been contacted by Herring and would like to attend, should call him at (716)227-3969.

Senior citizens will once again have a chance to show off their athletic abilities when they compete in the fourth annual Monroe County Senior Games, which will take place on Sunday, September 18.

More than 500 participants aged 55 and older are expected to take part in the games, which are being sponsored by Monroe County Office for the Aging and Monroe Community College. This year's games will include competition in such events as horseshoes, racquetball, tennis, track, basketball and more.

The Senior Games Golf Tournament will take place on Friday, September 16, at Genesee Valley Golf Course. The bowling tournament will take place on September 17 at Marcel's Olympic Bowl. Participants will be competing within categories divided by sex and age groups.

Registration forms for this year's Senior Games are now available from the Monroe County Office for the Aging. In order to compete, athletes must register before September 9.

Anyone interested in registering for the games should contact the Office for the Aging at (716)274-7823. The registration fee for participants is $5. Admission is free for spectators.

Each team asks to be invited in to ask a few questions about the individual or family's faith, and then team members give personal and scriptural testimony about Jesus Christ. If the response is positive, the team will return two or three times to help people prepare to re-enter, or enter, St. Augustine's parish community.

"It's been very surprising how open these people will be," Egan said of her home visits. 'Some are angry about what's happened many vears ago?"

Joseph Guido, another team member, said several people he's visited have stopped attending church in their later years. "A lot of people feel their work is done when their kids have gone through school," Guido said. "We try to tell them that we're always called to worship as a community?"

Although team members often are warmly received, Sister Bush admits that the majority of those contacted choose not to come back.

"If 10 percent eventually wound up returning, I would consider that a good rate," she said.

Next week, Sister Bush and Guido will be working at the Billy Graham Ccrusade. The parish supports Graham's ecumenical approach, which has been a strong part of St. Augustine's philosophy.

The covenant, signed by Bishop Matthew H. Clark and Episcopal Bishop William Burrill, pledges cooperation in such areas as the use of facilities and resources, spiritual retreats, interdenominational marriages and social-justice issues.

Long before the covenant was signed, however, St. Augustine's had been working with neighboring St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, conducting vacation Bible-study classes, providing babysitting for Mass-goers and celebrating ecumenical liturgies. St. Augustine's Deacon Brian McNulty works with St. Stephen's to prepare Episcopal/Catholic couples for marriage and baptism.

"We've used St. Stephen's hall several times for spiritual renewal and reconciliation weekends," Father Trott said. "(Since the covenant) we pray for their bishop, and the Episcopal people more often in our intentions," he said.

St. Theresa's also benefits from St. Augustine's ecumenical ties, receiving some funding from several area Protestant churches in addition to its parish subsidy.

Hospitality, whether intended for the homeless, the unemployed, the illiterate and the unhappy, seems to be the key to St. Augustine's continuing growth. Catholics and non-Catholics, church-goers and the spiritually unsure all find a welcome at the 90-year-old parish.

Funerals are for the living? Many times plans made without family consultations will leave family members unhappy and dissatisfied. Telling close family members that you would like to have a serious discussion about your plans for your funeral and inviting them to help with the arrangements assures they understand your desires. It will also offer them an opportunity to tell you what they would prefer. Planning a funeral ahead of time is helpful. Don't neglect to take into consideration the wishes of those who will live after you. They are the ones who will benefit or suffer from the choices you make.
