For Individuals Who Say, "I don't need a hearing aid most of the time."

Following the old adage, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," Crandall Hearing is offering a new hearing aid with micro-advanced technology that may be right for you if a hearing aid isn't needed all of the time.

If you have a hearing loss, you may not need to amplify all sounds, but only need assistance with certain sound levels. This new advanced technology is a built-in sensor that continuously samples the listening environment and only amplifies quiet sounds. Loud sounds where no assistance is needed pass through without amplification.

It is designed for individuals who need good sound quality and have difficulty understanding soft and high-pitched speech sounds. Let us help you rediscover the important sounds of life.
