piration has always been those people who told him he couldn't do something.

"It makes me want to prove them wrong, so I work harder," he explained.

Encouragement from his family has also helped strengthen Mele's desire to prove others wrong.

"My parents have always been very supportive, too, and never tried to hold me back," he said.

A parishioner at St. Anthony Church, 204 W. Washington Ave., Mele will attend Corning Community College this fall. He plans to study liberal arts, and hopes to play lacrosse as well.

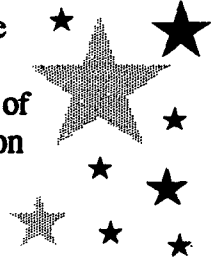

D'Aloisio said the future looks bright for the senior who leaves an indelible mark at Notre Dame.

"Jamie's perseverance, hard work, dedication and commitment to excellence will continue to guarantee success for this special individual."
