

alism and
my Wilkin.
ut their ex-
the actual

have
But, even
ou. So, I eed to e that is quit

d I've got about sex
r the way
to talk to n't there suggest?

nk that you
nest and
ts. Your
be honest
you can't
bout sex,
e near ou have to
r parents;

nior

/ontnremove.html

ing Guide

NICS
AKE

sine
roups,
ian,
ada pasta
unt
rmer

30

Dear BK Student: Don't you think we're all better off keeping our mouths shut, than trying to tell other people their business? I mean, when is an appropriate time to give advice and when isn't it? Give some examples.

A Here is a general rule: If you were in the same situation that the other person is in, would you want your advice? If so, help them out. If not, stay out of their business!

A There's a line that needs to be drawn and you as a person need to assume where that line is. You need to put yourself in the other person's shoes, and then go from there.

Paul Amico, 18, senior would like to warn him about what he's doing, but don't want to risk our friendship. Besides, I'd feel like a hypocrite because I got drunk once, too. Should I give him advice or keep quiet?

Talk to him through experience. But no matter what you say, he might do as he pleases until he experiences the worst.

Thomas Kryger, 19, senior

If he really is your friend, he shouldn't get mad because you are concerned for him. After all, what are friends for?

Adam Inalaco, 17, senior

Well, you have changed, and if he's your friend he will accept that and heed your warning. So don't be afraid. You only advise him because you love him, and he should know that.

Dave Yoekel, 17, senior

Dear BK Student: I see people screwing up all the time so I tell them about it. But I don't seem to have any friends, and all I'm trying to do is give friendly advice. What's up with that?

It could be the way you're voicing it. Instead of coming straight out and getting in their face, try to politely say what you feel is wrong with their situation.

Jeffrey Parizek, 18, senior
It's time to shut up or be prepared for a long life with no friends. It is not always good to hold things in, but it's also not good to let everything out. You don't have to be the master of knowledge.

Chris Lemik, 17, senior

Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren (Dear Abby) are twin sisters. They will celebrate their 80th birthdays on July 4.

Ann Landers' actual name is Eppie Lederer, and Dear Abby's is Pauline Phillips.

These siblings ran an advice column together in college, but dropped out of school to get married in a double wedding.

Ann Landers has been a syndicated advice columnist for 43 years, and Dear Abby for 42.

According to Ann Landers' distributor, Creators Syndicate, her column is the most widely syndicated in the world, appearing in 1,200 newspapers and with an estimated readership of 90 million people.

Dear Abby's distributor, Universal Press Syndicate, estimated that her column reaches 80 million people a day and that she receives 10,000 letters per week.

Bringing the Good News Home

Look for us. The Catholic Communication Campaign. We bring the Good News into your home and into the homes of millions of people across the country and in developing nations through inspiring documentaries, public service announcements, wholesome videos and other media activities.

The next time you watch TV, listen to the radio, "surf" the Internet or pick up a newspaper, know that CCC is working hard—spreading God's word.

Please give generously when your parish takes up the collection for the Catholic Communication Campaign. Help us bring the Good News home.

PLANNING TO SEE A MOVIE?

Call 1-800-311-4CCC for reviews of movies in national release. Just another way CCC works to bring the Good News home.

JUNE 13-14, 1998

THE CATHOLIC COMMUNICATION CAMPAIGN
HOW THE GOOD NEWS GETS AROUND

3211 Fourth Street NE • Washington, DC 20017-1194 • (202) 541-3237 • Fax (202) 541-3129

BOSDYK'S
Restaurant & Cocktail Lounge
ENTERTAINMENT
Tuesday through Sunday

MANHATTAN & MARTINI SPECIALS
Bar and Club Room • 11-7 Daily
$1.85 each

450 Spencerport Road
(Corner of Long Pond)
716-247-7690