

on the MOVE

Enjoying the rain puddles July 24 at the Summer Christian Music Celebration in Owego, are, from left, Annie Waick and Amanda Sentf, with their brothers Kyle Sentf and John Waick.

Stories by Mike Latona
Photos by Mike Mergen

Chris Fleming, left, and Jason Brusso take advantage of Saturday's rain by going mud sliding. The rain did not keep people from having a good time.

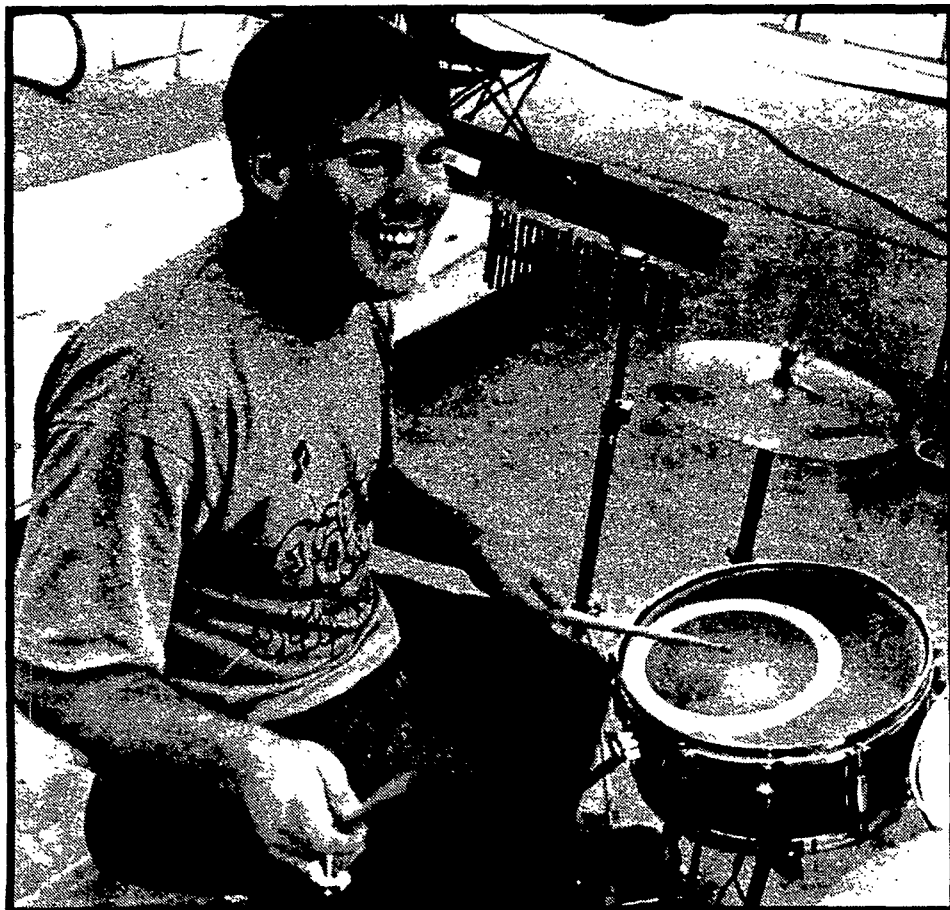

A go go

Janet Allard and daughter shell during the sing-along.

Amy Liberatore joins in the music.

Kevin Doherty plays the drums July 24 in Owego.

For the love of m

Kevin Doherty has taken voice and drum lessons for a number of years. Along the way he has also learned the guitar, bass and piano.

At this rate, the 19-year-old could pass himself off as a one-man band — and at times, that's exactly what he is.

"I have a multi-track recorder at home," said Kevin, explaining that he likes to record music on which he provides all the instruments and vocals.

Kevin also belongs to two bands, plus a choir and an cappella group at Binghamton University. And he also finds time to play in the choir at his church, St. Patrick's in Owego.

"Pretty much I've decided to dedicate my life to music," Kevin said.

Kevin has been spending much of this summer performing with Trace of Grace, a seven-member Christian rock band made up of St. Patrick's adult parishioners. On July 24, Kevin banged joyfully on the drums while the band took part in the Summer Christian Music Celebration at Hickories Park in Owego.

Kevin noted that the band was performing for the fourth

conse
at a "t
near f
busy :
en his
"I'm
play,"
Kev
durin
schoc
he sai
conte
at his
"It v
had se
remar