

MOVE on the

A focus on Catholic leaders

FATHER BRIAN COOL, Catholic chaplain, University of Rochester: "He just seemed like he was properly placed by the diocese as a campus priest. He was really outgoing, very down to earth. I just felt like I was talking to one of my friends in school."

PHOTOS
BY JUSTIN STEELE

FATHER ELMER SCHMIDT, retired diocesan priest, resides at McAuley Residence in Rochester: "He had an incredible amount of faith, that's how I felt coming away from it. He talked about how he had written numerous letters to the Catholic Courier, how he's very involved. He shows the priesthood is not just a stage in your life, it's a continuation. It's a full life sentence and an enjoyable one. The patience he had was incredible. He was very interested in what I was doing; he seemed to understand. After it was all done he started asking questions about myself. I was like, 'I'm interested in you, Father — why are you interested in me?'"

FAT
"He
turr
was men

SIS
Roc
thir
she (du
pec
pro
por
dig