'Shoe-slapping' ethnic festival

Rochester-area Germans shared their ethnic pride during the German Fest August 11-13 at the German Cultural Center Grounds of Gates Memorial Park. Above, Roland Osterwinter (left) and other members of the S.V. Heldengold Shoe Slapping Club perform the "Holzhackerbaum" dance August 13. The three-day festival, sponsored by the Federation of German-American Societies, Inc., featured numerous musical and dance performances, as well as soccer matches, games, German food and historical displays. At left, Barry Fischer, of Swan's Market in Rochester, struggles to get a beer keg airborne during the keg-toss contest. Fischer operated a food-vendor booth during the festival, selling sausages and other meats.
