St. Andrew's students strive to grow peace

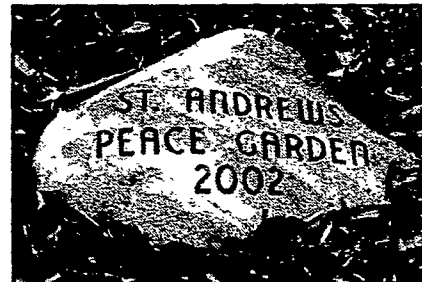

Some of the student gardeners pose with a statue of Mary after the service.

Students at Rochester's St. Andrew's School transformed a grotto on the school and church property into a peace garden that was dedicated during a May 31 prayer service. Prior to the service, the children completed work on the garden's stone and wood, and sixth-graders helped preschoolers plant marigolds.

During the dedication service, children sing songs about peace, patriotism and Mary.

Students raised funds for this "peace rock," which was placed in the garden.
